

AUTHENTICATION IN ART

AiA Art News-service

ART HISTORY NEWS

Research. Exhibitions. Auctions. Discoveries. Opinions.

A Picasso in a suitcase?

June 29 2015

Picture: Scotsman

An artist here in Scotland claims to have found a painting by Picasso in an old suitcase of his mother's. The picture had lain undisturbed for decades, says Dominic Currie, above, but was opened after his mother's recent death.

Apparently, Mr Currie's mother met and fell pregnant to a Russian soldier whilst on a holiday to Poland in 1955, and the picture was a gift from him. More here.

Update - some doubts raised here in the Mail, by some who think it looks to be a pastiche based on another work by Picasso in Chicago, his portrait of Daniel-Henry Kahnweiler (below right).

